GOP 12th District Congressional Candidate Daryl Kipnis' Statement On President Donald Trump's Meeting With Russia's Vladimir Putin

“The only way to truly measure the impact of President Donald Trump’s meeting in Helsinki with Vladimir Putin is not based on the words that were either said, or not said, on camera today, but on the actions and results that follow tomorrow and thereafter.”

“As demonstrated by the reference to U.S. Supreme Court nominee ‘XX’ in a pre-printed response to the president’s nomination of Judge Brett Kavanaugh, there are many on the left who would say the same exact things about the president no matter what he said today. Moreover, it’s difficult to filter the facts when media outlets are competing for viewers and turning to more extreme and salacious language to do it, particularly when it concerns the president.”

“The bottom line is that Donald Trump is our president and they are not. I invite them to join me and the rest of the country in prayer that our president will continue to protect and promote the interests of the American people on the world stage and advocate for peace that consists not only of the absence of conflict, but the presence of justice.”
